COFFEE KLATCH:
FOR THE LOVE OF COFFEE,
THE GIFT OF GAB and John Rogers

By Gina Vee

We had coffee, those bean-like seeds of a tropical shrub, roasted and ground. We weren't what you'd call coffee gourmets--maybe coffeeholics or javaphiles-we just knew it had to be STRONG!!!

Then there was the open space where we met informally to solve the problems of the world. There were searing conversations with many, truly many points of view. Sometimes there was also music.

At the helm was John Rogers, who lived at the Artesian Bath House Trailer Park. He had some chairs; others brought their own. He brewed a very robust cup of joe in an old-style coffee pot. Someone brought pastries. and "Sinkers and Suds," were served. Those were donuts and an eyeopening dark brown drink.

There were days that were sunny and sweltering, and others that were cold and blustery. As desert dwellers, we always expected a lot of wind. No matter the weather, the get together was on.

When the dreaded Covid struck - where we were supposed to be sequestered away from others, we still gathered, although with our chairs farther apart. No one was going to keep us from sharing our feelings, or having a cup of classic roasted brew. We longed to chat, exchange ideas, have dialogues and maybe not be so alone!!!

We didn't get sick. Our coffee times gave us something to do. We owed it all to our welcoming host, our favorite barista, who in spite of being erudite never overwhelmed us with his knowledge and intellect. He contributed to the discussion only when necessary.

That was John Rogers, who died on Memorial Day 2023. John we miss sitting around with a very hot cup of coffee while listening to you. You were the perfect host.

THE HEALTH CENTER

©2023 Chris Krieg, Health Center. Oil on Canvas, 66 x 59 inches

Truth or Consequences is a jewel on the Rio Grande in the Land of Enchantment. The earth gives rise to hot, mineral-rich waters that have provided soothing relief for generations. It is a place of peace where early Americans soaked and resolved their conflicts. In the 1900s, many devotees flocked to these healing waters, and the town earned the reputation as "The Health Center". -Chris Krieg

YOUNG AT ART
ART TO SHAPE THE FUTURE

Unveiling Boundless Creativity:
NMIYAF's Inaugural Showcase Leaves a Lasting Impression

by Chantal Elena Mitchell

The New Mexico Indivisible Young Artists Fellowship (NMIYAF) was established in 2023 by Dimid Hayes, Yocelyn Riojas, and Lauren Oertel with an aim to provide young artists age 18-30 with a direct avenue to financial support, exhibition spaces, valuable guidance, and mentorship by seasoned artists. Based on a theory of intergenerational collaboration, the fellowship forges connections between individuals passionate about championing the next generation of artistic talent and young artists and other young people.

A special thank you to everyone who came together to make this event possible.

In June 2023, five dynamic New Mexican artists were selected: Shea Brill, Gustavo Ramirez, hazel batrezchavez, Shundiin Desbah Nakai, and Domm Izaac. The artists received a $1,000 honorarium, $500 for art supplies and an opportunity to showcase their artworks. The artists, organizers, mentors and others traveled to T or C October 13-15, 2023 for the introductory showcase weekend organized by NMIYAF. This event included a welcome dinner, a private gallery walk-through, a Q&A session and a group walking tour of several local art studios and galleries.

Titled "Young At Art -- Art to Shape the Future," the group art exhibition at RioBravoFineArt Gallery left a lasting impression. The showcase's success surpassed expectations and fostered synchron-icity and camaraderie among organizers, artists, and attendees. Dimid Hayes beautifully summarized the common theme of safety and security woven through the artworks, highlighting the artists' desire for safety, visibility and connection. It wasn't just about showcasing talent. It was about the raw, human yearning for security.

ART IMITATES NATURE in Truth or Consequences

by Bruce Cox

In the 1890s, a German scientist described a process in which dissolved metals are diffused and precipitated in a new medium to form concentric color patterns. The scientist was Raphael Liesegang, and the features he described have become known as "Liesegang bands" or "Liesegang rings."

The sedimentary and volcanic rocks in and around Truth or Consequences contain many examples of this phenomenon, especially in the form of elaborate bands of iron oxide, manganese oxide, and microcrystalline silica. Faults associated with the Rio Grande Rift served as channels for hydrothermal (hot spring) waters, carrying dissolved iron, manganese, and silica. These waters diffused into the surrounding rock, cooling and reacting to form the mineral-rich bands. At most locations, the concentric or convoluted banding occurs in jasperoid, in which iron and silica have completely replaced the original fine-grained limestone or shale.

The "Candy Rock" or "Picture Rock" found in the Mud Springs Range and Caballo Mountains displays Liesegang banding, and is well known to mineral and gemstone collectors. The banding occurs locally, with quartz crystals and fracture surfaces coated with botryoidal ("bubbly") manganese oxide. A less well-known type of Liesegang banding occurs in the sandstone west of T or C, along the Geronimo Springs fault zone. Bullseyes and "folded" layers of manganese oxide contrast with the gray and tan sandstones deposited within the Rio Grande Rift basin.

These colorful, swirly rocks are evidence of a dynamic geologic environment, and we are fortunate to have them nearby.

A Birdie Affair

A Birdie Affair, a fundraiser for the Sierra County Arts Council, was a soaring success. Artists used a bird feeder, bird house, bird bath or a bat house as a basis for their creations. Each piece is an expression of the artist's unique vision, sense of humor and handcraft. The Birdie party at Rio Bravo was a celebration of their achievements. A silent auction enabled the enthusiastic group of party-goers to take home their favorites.

RECYCLED ART

Trash destined for the landfill, and other found objects, were repurposed into ingenious and beautiful artworks. November 2023 saw a record 58 pieces entered in the show displayed in 12 downtown locations. This year's show was a fundraiser for 2 scholarship funds for graduating high school students going into environmental studies.

Delmas Howe: Early Artwork

Still Life: Cabbage and Peppers
Oil on Canvas 14" x 18" ca. 1965

It was the late 1950s and twenty-something Delmas Howe had arrived in New York City, there to study bassoon with a member of the NY Philharmonic and art at the renowned Art Students League.

Exciting times, and to make a living Delmas sold his paintings at the Village Art Show. His spot was right outside the Fifth Avenue Hotel, near Washington Square Park. Many of those paintings were still lifes, which Delmas sold for about $35-40. Some were bought by galleries who resold them at higher prices.

One such still life (above) was bought from a gallery by a couple who kept it for 50 years. Now the owner is paring down her possessions, and she has donated that much-loved painting to the Sierra County Arts Council.

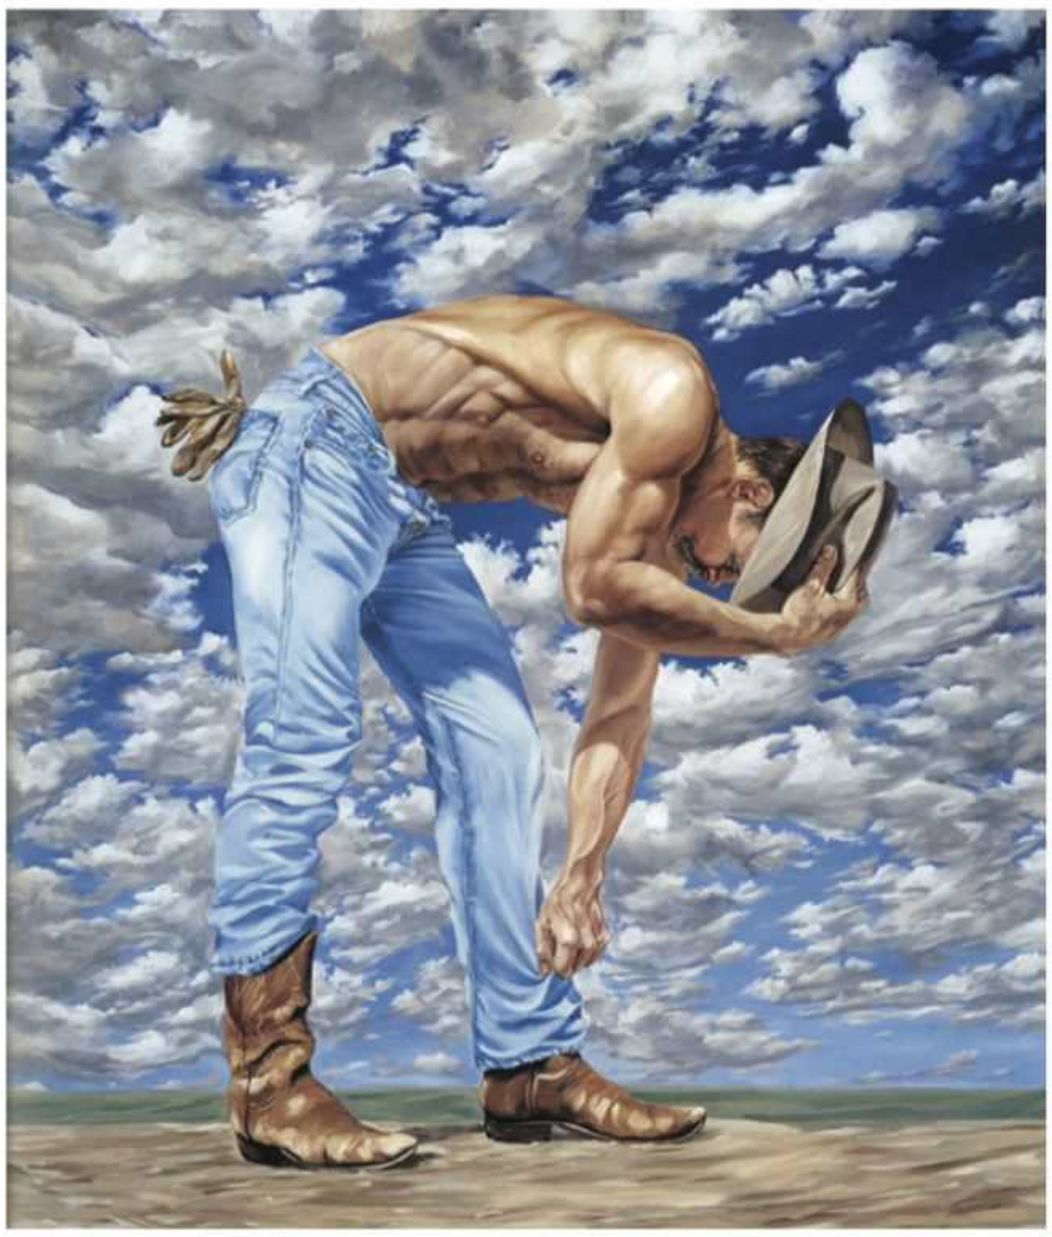

Delmas says the striped cloth shown in the painting was a motif he frequently used at that time. Seeing this painting after so long reminds him of the excitement of being in New York, his studies and other artists he befriended, and also the economic struggle to survive in the Big Apple. It was quite a change for a young man born and raised in TorC.

Eventually Delmas returned to his roots in the Southwest and began to focus on his now-famous cowboy paintings.
